Intelligent Solutions for Smart Grids & Smart Cities

The International Conference on Power, Energy, Control, and Signals and Systems (IPECS2022) is the platform that brings together leading academic scientists, researchers, professional engineers, and student scholars to exchange and share their ideas, experiences, and research outcomes. The second edition of IPECS, organized by the Department of Electrical and Electronics Engineering, TKM College of Engineering Kollam, will be held from 10–12 June 2022. The conference aims to provide a platform for electrical engineers from academia and industry to present their work, share their experiences, and interact with experts and scholars worldwide. This edition of the conference is focused on the theme "Intelligent Solutions for Smart Grids and Smart Cities".

About the College and the Department

T K M College of Engineering, the first Government-aided Engineering college in Kerala accredited by NAAC with an 'A' grade and all UG Programmes accredited by NBA. The college is the first and foremost institution for technical education, run by the T K M College Trust, headed by Janab Shahal Hassan Musaliar. It is now a renowned technical institution in India. The college is affiliated with the APJ Abdul Kalam Technological University and is approved by the All India Council for Technical Education (AICTE), New Delhi. The Department of Electrical and Electronics Engineering, TKMCE, Kollam, was started in 1958, and right from the beginning, the department has been rated very high performance in academic circles. The graduates from this department include many technocrats, academicians, and researchers, working worldwide.
